Title of Article: ICT and its role towards professional media practice in Nigeria

Author(s): Okorie, Nelson

Date: 2008

Abstract

Information and computer technologies play a vital role in any modern society. Facilities such as computers, internet, digital broadcast systems and satellite transmission are among ICTs which have revolutionized media communication in the Nigerian society. This paper looks at the relevance of information technologies prevalent in the society. In addition, the locus of this paper provides a theoretical explanation on the role of ICT in professional media practice.