Title of Article: Alcohol Use in Universities: Analysis of Trends at the University of Botswana

Authors: Alao, A. A.

Date of Publication: 2007

Abstract:

The study examined the extent of alcohol use, the consequences of abuse and possible regulation of its use at the University of Botswana. The findings revealed that about three-quarters of the subjects indicated that students drink too much and have encountered frequent misuse of alcohol by students. Subjects have had their studies interrupted, engaged in a strong argument or quarrel, insulted or humiliated as a result of a drunken student. Other consequences of drinking behaviour of students had led to disruption of lectures, blocking of road and unwanted sexual advances. Some recommendations on the regulation of the use of alcohol on campus were made.