Title: The Commitment and Due Process in Nigerian Lecturers/Teachers: The “Natural” Teacher Approach.

Author(s): Faboyede, Olusola Samuel

Date of Publication:

Abstract: The teaching profession demands diligence, self-discipline, skills, and due process for survival and effectiveness. It entails imparting knowledge. Effective teaching underlies successful learning, although there are no instant ways of achieving this. Nigerian teachers have had to grapple with demands like deficient operational environment, undefined career structure and low status. This paper attempts to remove the quackery or dross in the Nigerian Teacher and make him the most important type of teacher that students will never forget. It brings to limelight the significance of commitment and due process in him, the factors affecting the making of a natural or an effective teacher and gives extensive tips employable for a worthwhile, rewarding, and successful classroom management in the teaching profession.