Abstract  The paper examines the strong reasons for privatization as a way of getting Nigeria on the right path to sustainable economic development. It makes a clear distinction between economic growth and development and submits that there is the need to promote policies that will enhance sustainable economic development and not just economic growth, which the nation has witnessed in decades past. The paper makes policy recommendations, such as (1) Promotion of entrepreneurial studies in the nations universities as catalyst to development. (ii) Creation of a political environment conducive to economic development (iii) better manpower development and efficient allocation (iv) the development of Agriculture by all the 3-tiers of governments (iv) Mobilization and the use of capital (v) The dismantling of artificial monopolies and creation of competitive market, amongst others.
