Abstract: The consequences of a growing unemployment phenomenon are such damning that no economy can afford to despise. Such implications are glaring in the economy of Nigeria where many negative developments are traceable to the non-availability of jobs for the teeming population of energetic youths. The paper intends to review the past and present situations of unemployment in Nigeria and recommend ways toward future improvement in the country’s unemployment situation. In doing this, the country’s unemployment records in the past were reviewed and compared with the current labour conditions in the economy. Such an analysis provided a way toward improving the future employment situation in the economy.
