Title of Article: Gender Discrimination and Management Position: An Examination of the Interface Using Selected Manufacturing Industries.

Author(s): Ajayi, M. P.

Date: 2010

Abstract: The book Examines the situation of women with a focus on gender based discrimination and progression along career line relative to their male counterpart. The book made use of survey design to study selected firms in Nigeria, which are non-traditional line of occupation for women to establish the impact of gender based discrimination. The study indicated that while there are no documented hindrances to women’s progression to management cadre in the non-traditional female occupation relative to their male counterpart, wider traditional perception about women’s ability to manage is resilient thereby reducing their drive to progress fast.