1. HMD311
1.1. HMD311 Communication and Human Development I (1 Unit)

This course is aimed at showing the nexus between communication and human development. Issues to be discussed are: conceptual analysis of communication and human development; relevance of communication to human development; indigenous and modern communication practices, elements of communication (verbal and non-verbal), crowd management; effective communication style; business communication; communication with priests, adults, children, and the public.